Environment, Housing and Infrastructure Scrutiny Panel

Record of Meeting

Date: 7th March 2024

Present	Deputy Hilary Jeune, Chair Deputy Tom Coles, Vice-Chair Deputy David Warr Deputy Alex Curtis
Apologies	Connétable David Johnson
In attendance	Item 2 only Deputy Sam Mézec, Minister for Housing Natasha Day, Head of Strategic Housing and Regeneration, Cabinet Office Lauren Ferguson, Research and Administration Officer, Ministerial Office Anna Thorne, Committee and Panel Officer Kaya Camara, Research and Project Officer

Agenda matter	Action
1. Briefing with the Minister for Housing – discussion points The Panel noted topic areas that it would discuss during its briefing with the Minister for Housing.
2. Briefing with the Minister for Housing – ministerial priorities The Panel welcomed the Minister for Housing and government officers for a briefing on the Minister’s priorities during this term of office. The Minister began by informing the Panel that the new Government had not imposed the framework of Ministerial Plans and that each Minister had more freedom to shape their priorities in their own terms. He said he had referred to his priorities on a number of platforms and during his nomination speech and these were: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Moving more Islanders into home ownership• Improving the situation for renters• Addressing the plight of homelessness It was agreed that the Minister would outline the actions that he was taking on each of these priorities and that the Panel would then pose any questions which arose. Supporting Islanders into home ownership The Minister said that he was keen to build and expand on the First Step shared equity scheme which had now been launched and was accepting its first applications. It was acknowledged that any expansion and increase in funding of the scheme would depend on the support of the wider Council of Ministers. It was the Minister’s intention to open communication with developers looking at the rezoned sites in the Bridging Island Plan and to ensure that he was aware of the proportion of properties which would be first-time buyer homes.

It was stated that both Andium Homes and the States of Jersey Development Company (SoJDC) have schemes which would be looked at to see what could be done to improve home ownership through delivery of those schemes. The Minister said that he would be seeking to maximise the development of the SoJDC sites for those who hadn't yet had opportunity to own their home.

It was stated that Andium Homes had been successful in providing 1- and 2- bedroom homes in recent years but that he was aware of the need for 3-bedroom family homes.

There was an acknowledgement that right-sizing would play a part in this and that, despite Andium's success, current rules did not always assist them in helping people move from properties they occupied into ones which were the right size for their needs. However, that under current rules they were struggling to do this effectively, to ensure people had access to the size of home that met their needs.

The Minister indicated that although there would need to be a cautious approach it may work better financially for homes owned by Andium (that would be impossible to rent) to be sold.

It was stated that lowering the age limit for access to social housing to 25 would be assist people who were perhaps at an earlier stage of their career whose wages may increase over time, as life circumstances change. Access to social housing would provide a buffer for those who needed it at that early stage.

The £10 million funding for the First Step Scheme would be released in tranches rather than in one go. It was felt that the advantage of this would be that the window for applications would be longer.

The Minister expressed the view that tranches would mean that the news would spread over time and people who did not think about applying in the first tranche may do so later.

It was stated that capping the amount that a home could cost under the scheme might also encourage sellers to slightly lower the price of their property to be accessible to the buyers eligible for the First Step Scheme.

The Panel asked about the collection of data during the first tranche of the scheme and when the Minister would feedback on whether the scheme was successful. The Minister said that the first tranches would provide a picture of who was applying and whether the criteria of the scheme and level of deposit were set at the right level. He said that Government would have the ability to check this at the end of each tranche. No substantial changes were expected to be brought through before the launch of the second tranche.

The Minister said that he had not spoken directly to mortgage lenders but would be meeting with the Minister for Financial Services and with the Consumer Council to discuss any potential for assisting more people into property ownership.

The Panel asked how relevant Ministers would work together on the provision of affordable homes and whether the Future Places Ministerial Group, established by the previous Government, would continue. The Minister said that the group would revert to its previous title of Regeneration Steering Group which was due to meet soon. He said that he was aware that the Minister for the Environment had made it one of his stated priorities to resolve the planning issues that have elongated the process.

It was stated that among the obstacles to the provision of affordable homes was the viability of building those sites already identified as a result of the lack of capacity within the sewerage network.

It was acknowledged that there would be competing priorities for funding from members of the Council of Ministers but that the Minister would push for as much as he could for the First Step Scheme and for work which would progress the development of affordable homes.

The Minister stated that he was keen to ensure that developers provide as much as they can in terms of affordable housing on new developments and that he did not want to see any reduction in the percentages they had to provide.

There was some discussion about the viability for the construction industry of providing affordable homes.

The Head of Strategic Housing and Regeneration provided information about the importance of the cost of land and the need for the supplementary planning guidance on the price of affordable homes to be factored into the land price negotiations.

The Minister acknowledged that, as a result of the fifth amendment to the Government Plan 2024 – 2027, a scheme for encouraging and incentivising right-sizing would need to be presented to the States Assembly by 31st May. It was stated that the aim was to find incentives that would help people who were not able to downsize to do so, rather than offer them to people who did not want or need them.

It was stated that there was a change of focus for the work being undertaken on vacant homes which was being tough on homes which were empty for no good reason, rather than providing incentives for people to ensure occupancy. The Minister would be meeting with the Comité des Connétables to explore what was possible under the Rates (Jersey) Law 2005 as a taxation element. The intention would be to find a way to get abandoned homes back on the market but also not to tax owners unnecessarily if there were valid reasons for vacancy.

Improving the experience for tenants

The Minister stated that he was determined to bring the amendments to the Residential Tenancy (Jersey) Law 2011 (RTL) forward. Officers had been instructed on the way in which he wanted the work to be expedited and had requested that elements be removed that he did not feel should have been there.

It was stated that a more formal declaration would be made in the coming weeks but that the Minister had requested that social housing regulation should not be in the amendments in the first instance and could perhaps be added at a later date. The Minister said that the addition of social housing regulation at this stage would delay getting other elements in place that he wanted to see, including:

- Security of tenure
- Protection from excessive rent increases
- The establishment of a rental tribunal

The Panel asked about the rationale for the removal of social housing regulation. The Minister stated that he wanted the work to be undertaken but that it would take more time. He had made a political decision to separate the regulation of social housing from the current RTL proposals.

It was stated that a final draft of the RTL amendments would be completed by September 2024. The Minister was intending to undertake some informal stakeholder engagement by the end of April and to have conversations with the Tribunal Service.

It was the intention of the Minister to make changes to the Deposit Protection Scheme to improve communication for both landlords and tenants. Whilst the scheme was praised it was stated that the administration could be improved to ensure that people did not lose money unfairly. It was felt that some of the work might require law changes.

It was also stated that a clearer process in the Residential Tenancy Law would reinforce the message that deposit money was not owned by the landlord.

There was some discussion about the forthcoming code of practice on the Public Health and Safety (Rented Dwellings) (Licensing) (Jersey) Regulations 202- which were adopted by the States Assembly in 2023. A commitment had been made with the Jersey Landlords Association (JLA) to build the guidelines with them rather than imposing a system upon them. The draft code of practice would be discussed with the JLA and with Environmental Health.

The Minister also said that he wanted to look at shaping the Social Rents Policy to help people in the most effective way possible and address inequities which meant that, in some cases, people were paying more for a smaller property.

The Minister stated that it was intended that a handbook be published that provided clarity for both parties so that people know where they can go. It was stated that this should be clear and address, for instance, safety elements. This was seen as a separate document from the law. It was hoped that the wording of the law would ensure that it could be passed but not enacted until the guidelines were published.

The Panel raised a question about data on rent levels and heard from the Minister that he was not convinced that a database of all rents was that useful but was more interested at looking at the mechanism of a rent review than a database of every rent.

The Minister spoke about the lowering the age of eligibility for social housing. It was stated that the pathway for expanding that criteria was underway but that current feedback suggested the change would not lead to overwhelming demand.

It was acknowledged that there needed to be increased promotion of the Affordable Housing Gateway and eligibility criteria. The Minister said that he had asked Andium Homes to do work on projections and the demands that they were experiencing, to see whether there was scope for widening the criteria further.

The Panel asked about the Housing Advice Service and heard that, while it was a relatively new service, it was hoped that it would be able to develop to do outreach and to gather expertise and information, but this would be a political decision based on available funding. The view was expressed that the Housing Advice Service should be the front door for all housing enquiries and that the Minister would like to increase the service capacity but did not want to find that the team were swamped as a result.

The Minister said that the supply of three-bedroom homes was not what it should be and that this was one of the reasons why the Island Plan sites were so important.

It was stated that the Andium Homes development at Cyril Le Marquand Court had been very successful and that a result of the success with down-sizing homes was that Andium was struggling to rent two-bedroom properties. He expressed the view that this could provide the opportunity to look at home-buy for those properties where there was demand and to provide rental when there was not that demand. The Minister said that there would be benefits to being flexible about how people were assisted to access housing.

The Panel asked about the priority that would be given to any changes to the Control of Housing and Work (Jersey) Law 2012 (CHWL). The Minister said that his political view was that, as currently structured, the law created a two-tier society. Any elements of the housing portfolio that related to the Control of Housing and Work Law would be led by the Assistant Minister for Housing, Deputy Carina Alves.

The Panel asked about the Minister's oversight of the categorisation/recategorisation of housing under the CHWL. It heard that the Minister did not receive many requests from people asking for homes to be recategorised. The Head of Strategic Housing and Regeneration said the power to recategorise housing was given exclusively to the Chief Minister not the Minister for Housing but that it would be useful to understand the patterns emerging from any requests to change categories.

The Minister stated that he did not like the idea of anything owned by Andium not being at social rent and was aware that decisions could be made now which would have an impact on how a home was used forever.

Addressing the plight of homelessness

It was stated that the Homelessness Strategy was good but that it was hard to implement. The reasons for being homeless were unique to every situation and primarily included health issues, the breakdown of relationships or domestic violence.

The Minister stated that he wanted to do the work to define homelessness in law and to ensure that this was connected to the obligations on public services for their action when someone found themselves in that position.

It was stated that this work had yet to be done and it would need the input of a number of bodies, including the Children's Service, Probation Service and the Housing Advice Service to ensure that there was an appropriate service and a legal obligation to help people who were homeless. Conversations on how to proceed would also need to include the Ministers for Health, Justice and Home Affairs, and Social Security.

The Panel asked why the Minister had established the Housing Crisis Emergency Taskforce. It heard that the body was the weekly focus group for the core actions in each of the pillars outlined above. It was attended by the Minister and officers for relevant areas and concentrated on what was happening in relation to each of the actions and any difficulties that the Minister needed to resolve. Future meetings would also include other Ministers, such as the Minister for the Environment to ensure that planning issues could be explored.

The Panel thanked the Minister and his officers who exited the meeting.

3. Panel matters The Panel noted the areas covered by the Minister for Housing for future questioning and agreed that a briefing should also be arranged with Andium Homes to gather information about their service and to ask for figures in relation to their home-buy scheme.	AT/KC
4. Future Meetings The Panel noted its next scheduled meeting was due to take place on Friday 8th March 2024 in the Blampied Room of the States Building and would include a briefing from the Minister for the Environment.

1. Briefing with the Minister for the Environment – discussion points The Panel noted topic areas that it would discuss during its briefing with the Minister for the Environment.
2. Briefing with the Minister for Environment – ministerial priorities The Panel welcomed the Minister and Assistant Minister for the Environment and government officers for a briefing on the Minister’s priorities during this term of office. The Minister told the Panel that there would be no major changes in priority from the previous administration and major proposals such as the Marine Spatial Plan and Offshore Wind would proceed with a States debate. Details on each might have changed but there would not be a major shift in policy. Offshore Wind The consultation on P.82/Offshore Wind had been completed and it was important to hold the debate on the proposition on 16th April. Initial analysis of the consultation responses indicated that 70% of respondents were broadly positive and 25% negative. Further analysis had yet to be done of the 900 responses to identify themes and concerns. This work was still being done. It was agreed that Scrutiny Panels would receive a dedicated briefing. The Minister said he was keen to ensure that there was a properly informed debate and to move to the next stage. It was felt that the majority of the public who had responded wanted to move the debate on and the Minister wanted to ensure that Members had the right information to support the proposition. He said that a close vote would not send a clear message on direction to commercial organisations which might want to get involved in the project in future.

The Panel asked whether the Future Energy Group existed under the new administration and heard that the group had not been formally established but that the Minister was in contact with the Minister for Sustainable Economic Development as it was anticipated that there would be phases of the offshore wind development which would fall under his remit.

The Panel confirmed that it was the intention to form a Review Panel to scrutinise future developments should the proposition be approved by the States Assembly.

The Minister stated that there were a number of aspects of the project which could provide interesting opportunities, including the potential that it could be the first wind farm built without any subsidy, the interest that it might generate in the French market and the prospect that it could provide surplus energy for the European grid.

It was acknowledged that these were still at the concept stage and need new and different agreements.

It was also stated that while Jersey Electricity were aware and that conversations would need to be had with them, there had been limited contact with the Minister to date and it was not yet clear what part they would play.

Officers stated that the company had been involved in conversation and had brought their expertise to the table, but no formal agreement had been made regarding their role in future developments.

The Minister restated that the debate was the opportunity to give the approval needed to move on to the next stage and to steer any policy work. Careful analysis would be needed around the cost and benefit of the different options for the energy supply.

It was further stated that France was continuing to expand its offshore wind programme as its nuclear generation was reaching the end of its life.

The Panel asked that the Minister make a request for the proposition to be debated at the end of the agenda for the States sitting commencing on the 16th April to allow Members of the Panel who would be away from the Island on States Assembly business time to return in time for the debate.

Housing

The Minister said that the Council of Ministers were committed to doing all it could to solve the situation in relation to housing. Latest numbers showed that demand was not as high as had been the case previously but that those who wanted to buy were still finding it hugely expensive.

He said that it was his intention to address the issue from a planning perspective and he was going to see what could be done to get applications through the system as quickly as possible. There would be a challenge with resources and vacancy management.

It was acknowledged that planning officers were under pressure and that there was also pressure on those staff involved in bringing forward plans for drainage.

The Minister wanted to put a priority on applications and try and bring forward affordable homes sites in St Peter. He continued that although there needed to be a focus on supply, the main issue for those who wanted to buy a house was affordability and that shared equity provided a way forward.

There were some discussions about the density of housing on sites, the relevant supplementary planning guidance and the level of parking provided on a site.

It was stated that new guidance had been issued and this provided the minimum standard that developers had to meet. It provided guidance on the parameters that they would be working with. It was hoped that by working with developers and applicants to help develop their schemes it would help speed up the process when an application was submitted. The Minister also said that pre-planning advice was an important element in speeding up the process.

There was an acknowledgement that advice could differ from Planning Committee decisions and that this was not helpful but there was also an obligation on developers to look at the Island Plan and not plan for larger developments than specified for the site than the plan allowed.

The Minister spoke about the use of Glasshouse sites and the challenges that they represented for development. Some of the glasshouses were dilapidated and in a dangerous condition. It was stated that the new supplementary planning guidance would help but there was an understanding that the sites were expensive to return to agriculture or to clear. It was also stated that while some of the sites might be large enough for development, they may lack the access to services and utilities required.

It was stated that the department were looking at the McKinnon Review of the department and its processes and that a new report was being issued. The key recommendation which was being worked on was the development of an industry partnership board which met quarterly and would provide closer contact on issues for discussion. They would also want to work providing industry forums and seminars to increase knowledge of policy and supplementary guidance.

A new customer charter has also been developed to help with turn-around times and returning phone calls. Pre-application advice would be encouraged to assist with the process and more information was provided on the Government's timescales.

The Minister was keen to see smaller applications that were impacting on individuals being determined as quickly as possible with decisions being issued within days rather than weeks once the statutory advertising period had expired.

Bridging Island Plan

The Minister said that he had wanted to bring forward an Island Plan but understood that this was not going to happen by 2026. Officers had been requested to look at the requirements of the Bridging Island Plan to determine what had been done and what still needed action to be taken.

The Bridging Island Plan was developed under the Covid 19 (Island Plan) (Jersey) Regulations 2021 which amended the Planning and Building (Jersey) Law 2002 to allow for the Plan to be brought in for a period of up to 3 years. The intention had been for the Bridging Island Plan to be replaced by a 10-year Island Plan in 2025.

The Minister had tasked officers with investigating how the Island Plan might be changed to become more flexible and to look at the process for the development and review of the Island Plan.

Water Strategy

The Minister said that the development of a Water Strategy was a priority and something that needed to be sorted out in the near future, and he intended to work with Jersey Water to look at the challenges, including the reliance on the current reservoirs. He said that climate change was making this work more urgent especially if it was identified that there would need to be an increase in capacity. The lead in for a new reservoir could be up to 15 to 20 years.

He said that more desalination work and use of water from Bellozanne would need to be explored as would the work needed at Val de la Mare and to increase storage.

It was stated that discussion would be needed on the integration of Jersey Water with the Infrastructure and Environment remit or whether the company should be an arms-length organisation.

Carbon Neutral Roadmap

The Panel asked for more information about the delivery against targets in the Carbon Neutral Roadmap. Disappointment was expressed about the low application and redemption of the vouchers for e-bikes and that the parking incentive on electric cars was being removed.

The Panel heard that Evie had struggled with its business model and a new better model was being sought.

A consultation would be launched on energy performance certificates this quarter and that time would be taken to ensure that this was developed well. The Minister said that a purchaser of a property should know what the energy performance was.

Tree protection

The Minister stated that he would not be bringing forward legislation but there was an effort to begin planting again. He said that officers and Jersey Trees for Life would look at how trees could be protected and acknowledged that certain trees need more special protection.

The Assistant Minister said he was keen to learn from the experience of the previous administration and that there had been misinterpretation and disagreement with the proposals for legislation.

Rural support

There was discussion about the need to work with farmers about the introduction of biodiversity schemes and of the need to keep people in the farming industry. The Minister said that he was trying to push the local growing of food for the population and of helping people to access schemes which encouraged small holdings.

Marine Spatial Plan

The Panel heard that the consultation on the Marine Spatial Plan (MSP) had finished and included meetings with the fishing industry.

Officers still needed to go through the responses to the consultation to identify changes needed to the MSP.

The chart of Marine Protected Areas was being revised and a final version would be accompanied by a six-week review process.

The officers offered a fuller briefing and that a full draft would be available to the Panel in the coming weeks.

The Minister said that it was important that discussions continued with the French fishing fleet.

Waste sites

The Minister said that contaminated soil was of vital importance for the Island's infrastructure and that there was finite space at La Collette. It was known that there was an issue with contaminated land at the Waterfront and that the disposal needed careful thought.

The Panel asked if it was known where waste sites were across the Island. It was stated that there was a strategy for dealing with the sites and there was a map but that there were legal issues around sharing that information. The information could already be accessed before any sensitive users went on a site.

Agenda matter	Action
1. Records of Meetings The Panel approved the records of its meetings held on 29th February and 7th March 2024.
2. Declarations and Conflicts of Interests The Panel noted the declaration of interest's section in the Scrutiny and Public Accounts Committee Proceedings Code of Practice and considered declaring any relevant interest to the items on the agenda. The Chair and Vice-Chair noted that while there they had no interests to declare they both attended informal meetings with Consortium Wind Farms.
3. Briefing with the Minister for Infrastructure The Panel received the Minister for Infrastructure and Government Officers for a briefing on the Minister's priorities for the remainder of this term of office. The Minister said that he would request his officers to schedule a briefing for the Panel on the Island's gas infrastructure in the next month. Property The Minister said that he was keen to look at the States property portfolio which had not, historically, received sufficient investment to maintain it properly. He cited Morier House as an example of a building which needed significant investment for which funding would need to be found. The Minister stated that there were 21 empty properties that should either be used or released. He also wanted to ensure that monies allocated within school budgets for maintenance were not spent on something else. The Minister spoke about sporting facilities, Fort Regent, and plans developed by the States of Jersey Development Company (SoJDC), which would include a skatepark and attractions. He said that there was £80 million available for a scheme to develop Fort Regent. It was stated that the redevelopment of Fort Regent sat within the Minister for Infrastructure's remit and that the Panel would be briefed when plans had got to that stage. He said that a timeline for the work had not been drafted yet. He said that the intention was to retain some properties initially so that employees could move into other buildings while refurbishment of the estate took place and plans to sell others could be looked at. The Minister said that he wanted to explore a set of criteria for buildings for investment and retention and creating a fund where money which was generated could be retained and was in discussion with the Minister for Treasury and Resources to explore the options available. It was stated that more parking was needed for St Helier, and he would be identifying possible sites for car parks.

There was brief discussion about other properties, including the progress of redeveloping the St Saviour's Hospital site, which was close to opening, and the Fire and Ambulance Headquarters on which the Minister was hoping to make a decision this year following meetings with the Ministers for Justice and Home Affairs and Sustainable Economic Development.

The Panel asked about the development of the La Folie Pub site. The Minister said that the site was owned by Ports of Jersey, and he had been assured that the work was going out to tender in March and that Ports of Jersey had appointed a new officer to lead on regeneration.

Active travel, bus service and road safety strategies

It was stated that a park and ride scheme from the Airport Playing Fields was being explored. There would be a focus on walking, cycling and bus travel and there would be a workshop with various departments to progress a strategy more quickly. There was a commitment to Active Travel and changing Islanders' modes of transport.

The Panel was informed that a number of ideas could be explored, including the facility to ride a bike to a bus stop and safely leave bike and take a bus into Town. There was an effort to identify sites to make that easier and, more generally, to provide more covered places for bikes.

The Minister said that Jersey was fortunate with the service provided by the current bus company.

The Panel asked about the disjointed approach to pedestrian areas and an integrated active travel plan. The Minister said that he was due to have a walk around St Helier and see what could be done in a short period of time. He wanted to look at current crossings, cycling routes and use of pedestrian areas and explore opportunities, such as the use of Broad Street for a market or for the night-time economy.

The Minister also stated that he had been speaking about accessibility and safety with organisations such as EyeCan to identify problem areas.

The Panel heard that there was generally good provision for Blue Badge parking, but that maintenance and improvement would be looked at.

There was some discussion of the bus service which included the possibility of express buses. It was stated that there were plans for a western gateway and that a similar eastern service worked well.

The Minister said he was keen to explore and find solutions to encourage more use and promote the value of bus use. He said it was his understanding that ridership had risen and were similar to pre-Covid numbers. The Panel was advised that this contrasted with the UK where numbers were decreasing.

A commitment to road safety was stated but that changes took too long and consequently lost public support. The Panel heard that the department would look at technology, targets and areas that needed improvement to make specific areas safer and also to improve the public perception of safety. The programme run by Les Landes School was mentioned as one that should be replicated.

In response to questions from the Panel, the Minister said that there needed to be better promotion of the Liberty Bus Hopper Service because the public did not currently know the route and timetable. Improvements could include a 'H' on the road at potential stops and allowing people to flag the bus without being at a stop. Promotion in the parish magazine and to residents of the immediate area were also suggested to increase awareness.

The Panel heard that tenders for the bus service were currently being evaluated. The Director of Transport said that the States of Jersey subsidised passengers rather than bus contracts and that a significant number of passengers received a subsidy of some sort.

The final bid for the service would take place by the end of June. Following a letter of intent, signing of a contract and a mobilisation period, the new service would commence in April 2025. This process would be quicker if the current operator was chosen as the preferred bidder.

In response to a question about the tender process, the Director for Transport said that the tenderers were bidding on the existing model of service and network. Once the bidder had been chosen the department and Minister would speak to the company about the services, budget and the government priorities, whether that was additional routes or around the transition to an electric fleet. There would need to be a decision about where the biggest benefits would lie. The Minister spoke about building a bus culture and that would need to be driven by service frequency.

Waste

The Panel heard that the main challenge was in providing the network to get liquid waste to Bellozanne. Funding had been secured for the medium-term, but more was required. The plan was to create holding tanks which would manage flow to the centre. The largest of these would be a third of the size of the cavern. Work was being done to progress this and to maintain the existing network. This year £9 million would be spent on a pumping station and liquid waste. The challenge remained that without this work it would be difficult to progress work on sites rezoned for housing and for connecting other properties.

The siting for tanks was known and it would be necessary to gain ownership of land and there was a hope that approval for this development could be fast-tracked. The treatment works at Bonne Nuit was approaching the end of life and was being replaced by a rising main that would allow 60 - 70 new properties to come onto the mains.

The Panel heard that in some circumstances developers may have to put temporary tanks in to speed up a project, but it would be preferable to link up to mains.

The Panel asked how realistic it was that unconnected properties in St John and St Mary would be connected and whether there was an ability to use the same opportunity to connect properties which were not connected to mains water. The Panel also asked whether the Island-wide rate would be considered as a mechanism for funding solid and liquid waste. The Minister said that it was his view that this was worth exploring.

The Minister stated that there was a need to maintain infrastructure. It was stated that £6 million would be spent on road surfacing but that spending of £8 million was needed.

Work would also be explored to look at the role of Jersey Water and whether there was a need for a company which had a remit to provide for mains water and collection of liquid waste.

The Minister said that he and the Minister for the Environment met fortnightly to ensure joint working on shared areas and both met regularly with the Minister for Housing.

It was the intention to bring forward an inert waste strategy by end of the year which would explore alternative sites to La Collette and different methods.

Property management

The Minister wanted to explore public access to the school estate. He said that they needed to be made more available and there should be a centralised booking system for using the facilities. He said that this worked elsewhere, and he would work with the Minister for Education and Lifelong Learning to achieve this.

The Minister said that he and the Assistant Minister for Infrastructure and Connétable of St Helier had ambitious plans for investment in the Central Market. A timeline was being developed for this work.

It was stated that informal discussions with schools had taken place and reception had been mixed. However, the Minister wanted to improve the situation for maintenance during school hours, which could not currently be carried out. He said that with the proper checks, maintenance personnel could be allowed on school sites.

He said that while the priority function was to provide education, the buildings should be better used by the wider community. The example was given of Oakfield which was used for about five hours a week and could be better used.

Work was being carried out to develop service level agreements for hours of operation and increase capacity for community use rather than potentially building more.

The Minister said that he would be supporting a bid for the Island Games in 2035 which would be its 50th anniversary. This would help ensure that funding could be secured for sports facilities.

The Minister wanted to look at satellite skate parks in Grouville and St Martin which currently did not have a site. The proposals for a skate park on South Hill would not be delivered in 2024 and he would be looking for a temporary facility. It was not currently appropriate to use Fort Regent for this. Efforts would be made to find a shortlist of sites.

In response to questions from the Panel, the Minister said that months of work had taken place on the Railway Walk in the aftermath of Storm Ciaran and this was still some time away from being completed. Work was also taking place with Environment colleagues on replanting and a tree strategy. There would be £250,000 investment on a Railway Walk Project.

The use of the logs and what could be done with them both in the public and private sector was being explored. Further repairs were needed in St Clement and work continued at FB Fields. St Catherine's Breakwater had also been affected by general winter storm damage and was being repointed and reassessed. There was some discussion about recycling. The Minister said he had been surprised by the volume of disposable vapes that were collected, for instance. He said that he felt more could be done and part of this would be about educating people. The Panel said that there was a concern about the low number of people who were recycling and how they could be encouraged to do so. One option was a form of co-operative with private providers. Disposal rather than collection of waste and recycling was under the remit of the Infrastructure and Environment Department. There was a brief conversation about biosolids and the storage and use to generate power at the Sewage Treatment Works. The Panel thanked the Minister and Government Officers for their time.
4. Marine Spatial Plan The Panel received Francis Binney, Head of Marine Resources and Management and Dr Samantha Blampied, Marine Data Officer for a briefing regarding the Marine Spatial Plan. The briefing was held in private in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Jersey) Law 2011 (as amended) under Qualified Exemption Article 35.

P.82/2023 Offshore Wind The Panel noted it was due to receive Government Officers for a joint briefing with the Economic and International Affairs Scrutiny Panel regarding the proposals for an offshore wind farm and the forthcoming States Assembly debate. The Panel considered a number of questions areas and agreed that it would draft a comments paper to be presented to the States Assembly outlining the next steps for Scrutiny - should the proposition be successful.
6. Scheduled Briefings with Andium Homes and Comptroller and Auditor General The Panel noted that briefings with Andium Homes and the Comptroller and Auditor General had been arranged for 10th April and agreed various topics of interest.
7. Long term financing of infrastructure projects The Panel noted that a briefing with Government Officers on the long-term funding of infrastructure projects would be scheduled for a date in April. The Panel discussed the information required from officers on the mechanisms for funding, particularly in relation to the recommendations made by the former Environment, Housing and Infrastructure Panel as a result of its Bridging Liquid Waste Strategy Review. The Panel noted the briefing paper provided by Officers and agreed that any further specific areas of questioning would be provided ahead of the briefing.
