Falkland Islands – gift.

The Bailiff made a statement in the following terms –

“Recently, some publicity has been given to an allegation that Jersey’s gift of £5m. in relation to the Falkland Islands has not been used, or is not going to be used, as intended.

I wish to make a statement about that allegation, and because a new House had been constituted since the gift was made, I will first briefly recount the history of the matter so far.

On the 14th June, 1982, the States approved a gift of £5m. from the Island to Her Majesty's Government 'towards the expense of the recovery and re-establishment of the Falkland Islands.'

Although the gift was made to Her Majesty's Government towards the expenses either of recovery, which was the primary concern at the time the offer was proposed, or of re-establishment, Her Majesty's Government stated that it would wish the whole of the amount to be applied to re-establishment.

The sum of £250,000 was therefore allocated at once to the Falkland Islands Appeal Fund, which was set up to provide immediate short term relief.

As regards the balance of the gift, namely, £4.75m., Her Majesty's Government expressed the wish that it should be allocated to a specific project or projects in the Islands, and in March, 1983, and at the suggestion of the Falkland Islands Government, it was proposed to Jersey that the gift might be put towards the provision of a new deep-water jetty for civilian use, as part of the development of the harbour at Port Stanley, to be known as the Jersey Jetty. The House was so informed on 15th March, 1983 and agreed to this suggestion.

I am informed by Her Majesty's Government that the present position is this.

There is no question of the balance of Jersey's gift of £4.75m. not being spent for the purpose of contributing towards the expenses involved in the re-establishment of the Falkland Islands. The options in relation to the rehabilitation of Port Stanley Harbour, including the provision of the Jetty, are still being considered, in view of the very high costs involved. If, at the end of the day, a decision is reached that a new civilian jetty is not required, then Her Majesty's Government will again consult with the Government of Jersey with a view to identifying a specific project or projects with which the Island's gifts can be associated from among the rehabilitation schemes which are proceeding, or are being planned, in the Falklands."

Flats for letting to persons on the housing list. Questions and answers.

Senator Richard Joseph Shenton asked Deputy Hendricus Adolphus Vandervliet of St. Lawrence, President of the Housing Committee, the following questions –

- “1. Does the Housing Committee accept that there is an urgent need for one and two-bedroomed flats in St. Helier for letting to persons on the housing list?
2. If so, has the Committee considered buying purpose-built blocks of such flats from private developers?
3. If it has, and has rejected the idea, will the President give the reasons, bearing in mind the desperate position of some of the persons on the housing list?”

The President of the Housing Committee replied as follows –

- “1. Yes, at the present time, there is an acute shortage of States’ rental accommodation due to a shortfall in the development programme over the past five years. This originates from a failure on the part of the Island Development Committee, under the Presidency of Senator Shenton, to make the necessary land available to maintain the momentum of the housing programme. Indeed, in a Statement to this House on 28th November, 1978, Senator Shenton admitted that his Committee had failed to meet the requirements of the Housing Committee. In one year alone, this resulted in a shortfall of 150 dwellings. The total shortfall at the present time is 280 dwellings.

In recent years, with the co-operation of the previous Island Development Committee, sufficient sites have been acquired so that, subject to the necessary finance being made available, an additional 650 dwellings can be completed before the end of 1987. This is the number required to put the development programme back on target.

2. Yes, over the years, the Committee has bought several blocks of purpose-built flats from private developers and will shortly be lodging a Proposition to purchase a block of 28 flats currently under construction. Negotiations are also in hand for the purchase of a further development. The Committee will not, however, propose the purchase of completed developments which are not considered to be good value for money or which have not been designed and constructed to the Committee's normal standards.
3. In view of the answer to the second question, this question is no longer relevant.
