REPORT

Overview

Jersey is not yet free from the threat of Covid-19. It is essential that the tools to manage the pandemic are retained, although not necessarily used, until the pandemic situation is over. This extension to the Covid-19 \(Enabling Provisions\) \(Jersey\) Law 2020 (the “Enabling Provisions Law”) is intended to continue to underpin a legislative framework that enables decisive action when it is needed but which restricts Islanders’ liberties as little as possible.

Background

On 27th March 2020, the Assembly approved the Draft Covid-19 (Enabling Provisions) (Jersey) Law 202-, which enabled the Assembly to introduce the emergency legislation required “to make any provision necessary or expedient as a direct or indirect result of the outbreak of Covid-19 in Jersey or its aftermath”<sup>1</sup>, to manage the effects and impact of the pandemic in Jersey. For a time-limited period, initially to 31st December 2020, this allowed the Assembly to make Regulations in this specific area which have the effect of primary law. On 9th September 2020, the Enabling Provisions Law was extended by the Assembly to 1st August 2021, with minor amendments.

In April 2021, the Enabling Provisions Law was again extended by the Assembly to 31st March 2022.

This was considered desirable because, unlike Regulations, before a draft Law can come into force it must receive the approval of the Privy Council and be registered by the Royal Court. This is a standard process during ordinary times which can take anything between a few weeks and a few months. The process does not, however, lend itself to the need to pass critical legislation on an expedited basis to deal with the extraordinary circumstances in which the Island still finds itself. It remains crucial to ensure that the States Assembly has the powers that it needs to be able to pass any legislation required to address additional challenges related to the Covid-19 pandemic, and that this can be implemented quickly.

Extension

If adopted, the associated proposition to extend the duration of much of the emergency legislation (suspended or active) to 30th April 2022 will take its duration beyond the current period of the special legislative arrangements under the Enabling Law.

If those arrangements were to expire, no new emergency Regulations, and no Order under the existing Regulations, could be made on or after 1st May 2022. This would have immediate effects on the control of Covid-19 if Orders are still being used to apply controls at that time, as these could not be renewed. In addition, there would be no scope to modify or add to the emergency legislation. (However, due to the improvements made by P.104/2020, the Assembly would no longer be precluded from repealing those emergency Regulations without recourse to primary law.)

As previously, it is therefore essential to ensure that the position of the Enabling Law remains aligned with the emergency Regulations. Thus, this draft Law will amend the Enabling Law to extend its operation to 31st July 2022.

While it is earnestly hoped that the pandemic and associated restrictions will be over by that time, that date reflects a planning assumption that further extension might be required. If so, then the date will allow a decision to be taken on that further extension with knowledge of the conditions at the time.

Financial and manpower implications

There are no financial or manpower implications arising from the lodging of this draft Law.

Human Rights notes

No human rights notes are included in this proposition as the Law Officers have confirmed that the draft Covid-19 (Enabling Provisions) (Amendment No.3) (Jersey) Law 202- raises no issues of compliance with the European Convention on Human Rights.

For reference, the human rights notes in respect of the Enabling Law itself form part of the original proposition P.29/2020.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This Law if passed will amend Article 3(3) of the Covid-19 (Enabling Provisions) (Jersey) Law 2020 for the third time.

Article 1 extends, to the end of July 2022, the deadline (currently the end of March 2022) after which no fresh provision can be made by Regulations or Orders under that Law. (New Regulations and Orders can still be made after the deadline, but only to repeal existing Regulations and Orders). In the Law as originally enacted the deadline was the end of 2020, but in September 2020 the Assembly passed the Covid-19 (Enabling Provisions) (Amendment) (Jersey) Law 2020 to extend it to the end of July 2021. In April 2021 the Assembly voted to extend further the deadline to the end of March 2022.

Article 2 gives the citation for the Law and brings it into force 7 days after its registration by the Royal Court.
