Reference your review into competition in the postal services. I probably do not understand all the implications of how this would effect the postal system. All I can say as a customer - is that we have a brilliant postal system at the moment - I have lived in Jersey for many years and have always been amazed at the service they provide, I think it would be a huge mistake to bring in other operators - I expect there are various financial reasons for inviting competitors in but I really think it would be a big mistake, why ruin something which works so well?
